Beef Cattle Show Is Scheduled For Monday Here; Sale Follows On Tuesday

Judging To Begin At 12:30; Interest Grows

Increased interest is noted from various parts of the county as the date for the Sixth Annual Beef Cattle Show and Sale draws near. County Agent S. V. Foy has visited this week a number of the 4-H members who are fitting calves for the show.

The Calloway County Farm Bureau, which is the sponsoring organization of the show, has printed and distributed numerous copies of the complete rules and premium list for the show. These programs have been mailed to vocational agricultural instructors in each of the high schools of the county and they and members of their agricultural classes are extended a special invitation to attend the show and sale.

A number of individual FFA members are fitting and will show and sell cattle at the special event. The judging of the cattle which begins at 12:30 p.m. on Monday, will be done by a representative of some of the larger buying interests which will be represented at the special sale on Tuesday, and John Corbin, field representative for West Kentucky Improvement Association who is experienced in the judging of breeding classes of beef cattle.

The Farm Bureau extends an open invitation to all farm and business people, especially ladies and boys and girls, to attend the show and sale. Last year there was a large crowd in attendance and much interest in watching the showmanship of the boys and girls in the handling of their cattle in the show ring and in observing the work of the judges as they study each animal and work out the final placement of winners. The officers and directors of the Calloway County Farm Bureau, named: John Lassiter, vice president; B. H. Dixon, secretary and treasurer; O. S. Wall, Marvin Hill, Stark Erwin, Bobby Harding, E. L. Kuykendall, J. Hansford Doran, John Cunningham, Taz Ezell, C. R. Subbiefeld, James Wilson, Clyde Phelps, Otis Fawell, W. D. McCuiston, Alvis Jones, and Paul Blalock, judges, have been asked by President Rudy Hendon to be present and assist in the conducting of all phases of the show and sale.

The following is a list of the "rules and regulations" of the show, which is in turn followed by the full premium list:

1. All cattle must be on grounds by 10:30 a.m.
  2. Judging will start promptly at 12:30 p.m.
  3. All cattle in Breeding Cattle Division must be registered or eligible for registration.

Senator Martin Warns Of Decline Of Local Gov't

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 6.—(UPI)—Federal and state governments are "Eating away the very substance of local government," Sen. Edward Martin, R. Pa., charged today.

Martin warned that the power to tax may eventually destroy lower levels of government and cause absolute centralization. Addressing delegates of the American Municipal Assn., here on the closing day of their 24th Finance committee member criticized the peacetime budget of the U. S. for being in excess of what "A free people can afford."

Reviewing the processes of American democracy from Thomas Jefferson's day, Martin noted that until 1933, few functions performed by the Federal Government directly affected local governments. But since the depression, National Government subsidies have "Had a distinct bearing on the development of local government functions which are closest to the people," the Senator said.

Federal Grants-in-Aid are becoming an increasingly difficult problem for Congress to solve, he declared. Martin cites overlapping and duplication in National, State and Municipal regimes which have severely challenged "the traditional division of power between the three levels of government," he said.

He observed that the Federal Government has displayed more aggressiveness in expanding its powers than local governments while cities struggle along with lower revenues. "Centralization is in the air in the United States, regardless of the consequences," he said. "The disastrous results of excessive centralization in Germany, Italy and Russia," Martin cautioned. "Centralization in those countries crushed individual freedoms."

Miss Lottye Suiter Represents First District At Meet

Miss Lottye Suiter, elementary education teacher at Murray State College, represented Kentucky's First District at a meeting of the State Committee on Education at the University of Kentucky in Lexington October 31 and November 1. The committee evolved four problems for study according to Miss Suiter: 1. The status of the elementary school; 2. How to improve the status of the elementary school through self-education; 3. To stimulate and develop better leadership for the elementary schools; 4. To obtain practices of promise in the elementary schools of Kentucky.

Approximately 25 leading educators from school districts and educational institutions throughout the state discussed the standards of elementary schools and conditions faced by teachers in the lower grades in the opening session of the two-day meeting.

Dr. William S. Taylor told the group, "Little or no attention has been given in the South to the elementary-education problem, the foundation upon which the whole program of secondary and higher education is built."

Dr. Taylor is head of the university's College of Education and chairman of the commission on curriculum problems and research of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

Dr. J. B. White, Peabody College, Nashville, outlining the plans of other state committees and noting the status of elementary education throughout the South, disclosed that as high as 90 per cent of the education student in some states preparing for teaching careers are planning to enter the secondary-school level rather than elementary.

Out of the 1,000 high-school girls questioned in a survey in one Southern city, he said, only six were interested in teaching in elementary schools. No boys had plans to teach in the grades.

Out of the one-wide and south-wide co-operative study of elementary education is one of the first such studies ever conducted in the nation. It offers an opportunity for to help equalize and improve the educational opportunities of our boys and girls," said Dr. White. The executive secretary of the Southern Association's co-operative study added that "the children and youth of our Southland are depending upon us. We must fulfill our responsibility to them."

He observed that the Federal Government has displayed more aggressiveness in expanding its powers than local governments while cities struggle along with lower revenues. Governor-Elect Earle C. Clements

By United Press

Earle C. Clements, county clerk, county sheriff, county judge, state senator and U.S. representative, sought the governorship of Kentucky after spending almost half of his 50 years in elective offices.

The six-foot, 225 pound man was born in Union County, where he held his county offices. He attended the University of Kentucky where in 1916 he was an all-southern football player.

Clements entered world war one and came out a captain. Soon after his discharge, he returned to farming and shortly after was elected sheriff, his first public office. He never has been defeated.

Clements, a polished politician, makes the game his bread and butter. Besides being work, it is his favorite relaxation and replaces any hobbies or golf games.

He still owns a 200-acre farm and recently sold a larger one when he began the primary campaign for governor.

Clements and his wife, the former Miss Sara Blue, are members of families which went to Morganfield in the early 18-hundreds. Mrs. Clements always kept in the background—in her husband's campaigning, but politics was not new to her. Her father was Union County sheriff.

They have one daughter, Elizabeth, 14.

Clements coached football at Morganfield High School eight years as a coach. He has served as an official of the State Association of Sheriffs, County Clerks and County Judges, being president of the House Committee on Agriculture the first term in congress, to which he was elected in 1944; is a charter member of the

Proclamation By The Governor Of The Commonwealth Of Kentucky

TO ALL TO WHOM THESE PRESENTS SHALL COME: WHEREAS, in any Republic the education of the people is indispensable for the perpetuation of liberty. In such a government the voice of the people is the voice of final authority. It naturally follows that the strength and efficiency of such a government will depend upon the education and training of the people to assume such far-reaching privileges and obligations. The common schools of Kentucky and of the country, as well as the institutions of higher learning, have advanced steadily the cause of education, which has been the source of strength to our state and nation; and,

WHEREAS, it is necessary to the cause of education that public support be maintained constantly; and, in order to obtain public support, understanding between the public and the school profession must be strong;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Simeon Willis, Governor of Kentucky, do hereby proclaim the week beginning November 9, 1947, as

AMERICAN EDUCATION WEEK FOR KENTUCKY and request all citizens to unite with the leaders of education in this State by observing that week in such a way as to enlarge the knowledge of our people regarding the achievements and aspirations of our educational system.

Done at Frankfort, Kentucky, this twenty-fourth day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and forty-seven, and in the year of the Commonwealth the one hundred and fifty-sixth.

Simeon Willis, Governor
Commonwealth of Kentucky
Charles K. O'Connell
Secretary of State

Griggs-Alvey post of the American Legion, a Mason and a member of the Christian Church.

Clements, who is balding and slightly round, speaks in soft and gentle tones. During his campaign for governor, his platform was of a general nature. He said he never wanted to make promises he wasn't sure he could keep.

Clements likes people and likes to talk to them. He always seemed to get real pleasure out of the small chores a congressman had to perform for the folks back home.

Mississippi Sends Reserved Judge Stennis To Senate

JACKSON, Miss., Nov. 6 (UPI)—Mississippi, in an outright reversal of recent political custom, will send a conservative and restrained circuit judge, John C. Stennis, to the Senate this month to succeed the late Theodore G. Bilbo.

Stennis won the office in a special election Tuesday. He made a race devoid of racial and other inflammatory issues that Bilbo won successfully three times to get the same job.

Stennis, in practically every way the opposite of Bilbo, was assured of victory last night when final returns were counted.

His closest opponents—Rep. W. M. Colmer and Forrest Jackson—conceded the election to Stennis and wished him luck.

Total votes cast for Stennis passed the 50,000 mark, about 6,000 ahead of Colmer and 10,000 more than Jackson, who was Bilbo's personal attorney.

In other large cities, Democratic national headquarters took pleasure in reporting that Cleveland's Democratic mayor was re-elected by the biggest majority in the city's history; and that Democrat was elected in Detroit's non-partisan election over a Republican supported incumbent.

While Reeves said the election showed confidence in the Republican Congress, McGrath said it "Reflected widespread dissatisfaction with the record of the Republican party on national issues. Of the Kentucky gubernatorial race, Syracuse said the "Cold facts are that the Democrat registration in Kentucky exceeds the Republicans by about 150,000. In the two elections preceding the 1943 GOP victory, he said, Democrats won by 117,083 in 1939 and 95,158 in 1935.

"Keeping these facts in mind," he said, "It will be realized that Kentucky Republicans made a showing yesterday which justifies real hopes that the electoral vote of that state may be cast for the Republican president to be elected."

McGrath said a Republican effort to inject the Taft-Hartley Bill in the Kentucky gubernatorial race backfired. The Republican candidate had championed the law.

"The general indignation over Republican high prices was also an important factor in the Republican defeat in Kentucky," McGrath said.

State Majority For Clements Exceeds 91,000 On Tally From 27 of State

Democratic Hopes Are Bolstered For '48 Election

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6 (UPI)—Democratic hopes for victory in the 1948 presidential and congressional elections were bolstered today by gains in Tuesday's widely scattered municipal elections.

Republicans countered with the argument that city elections were determined on local issues, and that it was "merely wishful thinking" to draw any conclusions from them with respect to the national picture.

What does count, according to GOP national chairman Carroll Reece, is that in six special congressional elections since the GOP took over congress last year, the Republicans have not lost a seat.

"I can recall no other year immediately following a congressional election in which the party which won that election did not suffer a loss in special elections," Reece said.

These congressional elections were held in Wisconsin, Washington, Michigan, Pennsylvania, Indiana and Ohio.

In three congressional elections Tuesday, Republicans were elected in Indiana and Ohio and a Democrat in New York with no upsets. This Reece said, can only mean that the voters are pleased with the record of the Republican congress.

Most important Democratic victory Tuesday was in Kentucky where they recaptured the governorship after a four-year GOP regime. Sen. J. Howard McGrath, Democratic national chairman, said this was "gratifying, but not unexpected."

Democrats were happiest over the winning of several important city elections.

"That will help us build a stronger organization for the 1948 elections," a spokesman said. "The party in power in a city administration has a better chance of getting out the vote in a national election."

"On that score we have a right to be justly happy about the outcome of Tuesday's election," he said.

He specifically mentioned Indianapolis where the Democrats ousted a GOP mayor after five years of Republican administration. Democrats also won the city of Wayne, Ind., mayoralty contests.

Altogether the Democrats won 53 mayoralty contests to 49 for the Republicans in Indiana. The Republicans formerly had 74.

In New York state the Republicans won 21 mayoralty contests to 19 for the Democrats, but the Democrats pointed out that they won contests in Buffalo, Schenectady, Syracuse and Niagara Falls—normally Republican.

The Democrats scored over Republicans Pennsylvania where each party elected 14 mayors, a net gain of eight for the Democrats.

In other large cities, Democratic national headquarters took pleasure in reporting that Cleveland's Democratic mayor was re-elected by the biggest majority in the city's history; and that Democrat was elected in Detroit's non-partisan election over a Republican supported incumbent.

Last Chance

Many unsuspecting, shall we say suckers, were fooled on Murray's Main Street today by dropping nickels into the newly-installed parking meter's. Police Chief Parker said that tickets aren't being handed out yet for "overtime" parking.

City Engineer Key said today that they expect installation and checking of the meters to be completed sometime this afternoon. Then it is up to the City Council to decide when the march of nickels begins in earnest.

In meantime, snickered Key, the meters will not refuse a nickel if any one wants to drop one in. This is definitely the last chance, though, for us nickel-conscious motorists to flout the red violation tag in the face of the local gardamens without paying a price for the pleasure.

County Agent Calls Meeting For Tree Planting

The planting of trees in Calloway County will be the principal topic of a meeting which has been called by the County Agent's office for Monday night, November 17th, at 7:00 p.m. in the Murray High School auditorium.

Representatives of all Civic Clubs, Rural Organizations, and other interested individuals are being asked to attend this meeting at which time the forestry situation in Calloway County will be presented and ways and means by which everyone in Calloway County can assist in getting more trees set on eroded land and woods will be discussed.

Since 1940, a total of 1,100,000 pine and locust trees have been planted by Calloway County farmers on 1,200 acres. Approximately half of this number, or 542,000 were set in the spring of 1947. These trees are furnished free of charge by the Tennessee Valley Authority, and distributed by the County Extension Service.

Postscript to a Plan

It would be less than fair to Europeans for any discussion of the Marshall Plan to encourage the notion that because enlightened opinion in the United States recognizes the need of aid to Europe, that aid will be given recklessly. It will not. For one thing there is enough American skepticism about the Marshall Plan to make even adequate aid a question.

In this context, the latest statement by Sir Stafford Cripps cheering the British people on to greater efforts in their own behalf and calling on them to act again as they did when they "stood alone" against other dangers is more than salutary. An analysis by a noted French economist has also appeared the last few days with a similar message on the possibilities of self-help.

Whatever aid goes forward under the Marshall Plan, Europeans should be prepared to render a careful accounting of its use. They should expect to co-operate with American agencies in determining the wisest allocation of materials. They can do much for understanding and confidence on both sides of the Atlantic by showing they do not look on American dollars as a substitute for European labor.

This co-operation should be carried on in a manner which will prevent suspicion of intervention on the part of the creditor. It should foster the greatest self-respect on the part of recipients of aid. To these ends the United Nations should be invited to organize the inspection services for European aid.

What is needed now is a full recognition of the responsibilities on all sides and an equal all-round determination to seize and develop the vast opportunities which Marshall Planning has unfolded for two continents.

Graichen Put Cuss Word Into Federal

Archives When Hughes Got Army Contracts

By FREDERICK C. OTHMAN
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6 (UP)—Ralph R. Graichen is a little man with a pink nose, a white mustache and the distinction of putting a cuss word into the official federal archives.

He said he couldn't help himself. He was so surprised when Howard Hughes snagged a $2,000,000 contract to build photo planes over the protests of himself and the other air force engineers at Wright Field that he scratched a cuss in pencil upon the document confirming the deal.

What does it mean? Asked Sen. Homer Ferguson, chairman of the subcommittee examining the inquiry into Hughes' fiscal relationships with the defense.

"It says 'f---' and Graichen, I'll be damned."

"And who wrote it?" asked the senator.

"Why, it's my handwriting," Graichen replied.

That's right, Graichen snapped, inhaling a puff of cigarette smoke.

Graichen is a veteran aeronautical engineer. He works for the air force on plans for new air planes and apparently he cares not a damn whether he ruins his reputation by stepping on the toes of the big boys.

"No, I'm not," said Graichen. "Neither is Colonel I mean, General Roosevelt."

The Air Force says that Roosevelt was a pilot during the war and personally piloted planes on several missions over enemy territory.

Graichen said that young Roosevelt was the only man in the air force to use pressure in favor of any particular plane manufacturer.

"Oh, now," protested Sen. Carl A. Hatch of N. M., "the use of pressure is not a very good word and I think Sen. Ferguson put it in your mouth."

"No such thing," snapped Graichen. "Pressure" was his own word. Nobody else had done what Roosevelt did and he considered that pressure.

Sen. Hatch submitted Sen. Ferguson's remark as a point of order. "No such thing," snapped Graichen. "Pressure" was his own word. Nobody else had done what Roosevelt did and he considered that pressure.

Sen. Hatch submitted Sen. Ferguson's remark as a point of order. He was so surprised when Howard Hughes snagged a $2,000,000 contract to build photo planes over the protests of himself and the other air force engineers at Wright Field that he scratched a cuss in pencil upon the document confirming the deal.

What does it mean? Asked Sen. Homer Ferguson, chairman of the subcommittee examining the inquiry into Hughes' fiscal relationships with the defense.

"It says 'f---' and Graichen, I'll be damned."

"And who wrote it?" asked the senator.

"Why, it's my handwriting," Graichen replied.

That's right, Graichen snapped, inhaling a puff of cigarette smoke.

Graichen is a veteran aeronautical engineer. He works for the air force on plans for new air planes and apparently he cares not a damn whether he ruins his reputation by stepping on the toes of the big boys.

"No, I'm not," said Graichen. "Neither is Colonel I mean, General Roosevelt."

POVERTY IN ROME—Misery at its lowest can be found in some of Rome's notorious slum quarters, and typical of the thousands of families living in single rooms is that of Salvatore Turzi. There are 11 Turzis in all, their room has one bed, which together with the table top and wheelbarrow serves as sleeping quarters. The older children go out into the fields every day to pick some fruit or find some wood to sell. Politics mean nothing to such families—they want bread, not speeches.

VA SELECTS SITE FOR HEART DISEASE STUDY

Intensive research into heart disease, which claims the lives of more veterans than any other disease, will be centered at the Veterans Administration Mt. Alto Hospital in Washington, D.C., VA said today.

The new research center, a part of which already is in operation, was developed under supervision of Dr. George P. Robb, widely known cardiologist and assistant medical director of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.

All the latest modern, safe methods of studying the behavior of the human heart will be employed in the center—cardiac catheterization, special X-rays of heart and blood vessels and heart electrocardiography.

Q. Does a veteran have to have 70 per cent or more service-connected disability to be eligible for outpatient treatment?

A. Any veteran with an established service-connected disability is entitled to outpatient treatment for the service-connected disability, regardless of the degree of disability.

Q. If I go to a private physician to determine whether I need hospital treatment for my disability, will the government pay the cost of the examination?

A. The government will pay the cost of examination by a private physician only if VA has given the physician prior authority for such examination.

Southeastern Conference Football Review

By JULIAN GRANGER

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 6 (UP)—It took repeated calls for the meat wagon to bring it, but a couple more Southeastern Conference football "scrums" found themselves sporting varsity duds today, and for one the fit seemed almost perfect.

That one was frosh fullback Ebert Van Buren, whose big brother Steve left many a calling card at opponents' goal lines for LSU and then went on to bigger things with the professional Philadelphia Eagles.

Jack Mayfield Shows Heifer At Cattle Exposition

Jack Mayfield, a member of the Murray Training School chapter of the Future Farmers of America, showed his purebred Jersey heifer October 22, at the All American Jersey Show and Junior Exposition held annually at Columbus, Ohio.

Jack showed his calf in the Senior class of the Junior division in which there were 67 entries. The winner was Donald Reece from Waco, Texas.

Prof. A. Curran, head of the agriculture department of Murray College who attended the show said, "Mayfield received valuable training by showing his calf in competition with the finest Jerseys of the United States. He learned more about the Jersey breed and what it takes to win."

A highlight of the show was a banquet given by Kraft Cheese Company for participants in the show.

The party from Murray returned Sunday morning, October 23.

One of the most plentiful and least expensive foods this time of year is the apple. While we have apples all spring and summer none of them can take the place of the crisp juicy one of fall and winter.

Apples are as "good for you" as they are good to eat. They are a good energy food, stimulates the digestive juices, and provide agreeable amounts of several vitamins.

Unless kept in a refrigerator or a cool dry place apples will spoil rather quickly. If you have your own orchard the crop is worth providing a good storage place. If you buy your apples the quantity depends not only upon your storage space but its availability to the members of the family.

While there are few dishes as delicious as the apple eaten out of hand it is well to have a few good apple recipes tucked away.

Appleauce Cake
1 1/2 C. applesauce
1/2 C. shortening
1/2 C. sugar
2 egg
1 egg
2 1/4 C. flour
1/4 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. each, cinnamon, cloves, allspice
1 C. chopped raisins
1/2 C. broken walnuts
2 tsp. soda
1/2 C. boiling water

Cream shortening and sugar. Add egg and beat. Add applesauce. Measure sifted flour. Use a little to dredge fruit and nuts. Sift remaining flour with salt and spices. Dissolve soda in boiling water. Add flour mixture alternately with the water to the creamed mixture. Pour into a greased, floured pan—(8 x 12)—and bake one hour in moderate oven.

Apple Crisp
Slice a thin layer of unpeeled apples into a baking dish. Sprinkle with brown sugar. Continue until dish is nearly filled. Make a mixture of sugar, butter, spices, and fine bread or cookie crumbs. Spread over top of apples and bake in a moderate oven. The amount of sugar will depend upon tartness of apples. If apples are not juicy add a small amount of hot water.

Serve either warm or cold, with whipped cream. Cream flavored with sugar, nutmeg, and vanilla makes a good sauce for this dessert.

Cider Gelatine Salad
2 T. gelatine
2 1/2 C. cider
1 C. chopped apples
1/4 C. chopped nuts
1/4 C. finely chopped celery
1/4 tsp. salt
1 T. finely chopped parsley or green pepper

Soak gelatine in 1/2 C. cold cider. Heat remaining cider to boiling, pour into gelatine and stir until dissolved. Chill. When it begins to thicken, stir in other ingredients and pour into a mold or individual molds.

INSTANT FARM MORTGAGE INaugurates NEW ERA AMERICUS, Ga. (U.P.)—The first insured farm mortgage loan ever made has been issued here to Robert A. Hale, 49-year-old former sharecropper. It started a campaign which federal government officials hope eventually will wipe out sharecropping and tenant farming in the South. Hale is buying the 150-acre farm he has managed for several years on a loan made by the American Bank of Commerce, covering 90 per cent of the investment. The mortgage is insured by the Farmers Home Administration. N1c

Hay and Pasture Save Much Grain

The abundance of hay and pasture in Kentucky gives farmers an exceptional opportunity to co-operate in the national program to save food and feed, authorities announced at the University of Kentucky Experiment Station at Lexington. A large amount of hay was produced this year, and there is much grass to pasture in most parts of the state.

It was said that steers could be wintered on small-grain pasture and other pasture and on hay and other roughages, and then finished on pasture next summer with little or no grain. This would save 30 to 40 bushels of corn per steer.

The Kentucky cow-calf plan makes it possible to produce 800 to 850-pound milk-fat calves with little or no grain. Every silo that is filled with grasses and legumes instead of corn saves probably 800 bushels of corn. Saving more pigs at farrowing time, feeding balanced rations, using more pasture, culling breeding stock and selling hogs at lighter weights were advocated to save grain.

Sloping-floor farrowing houses and use of electric hoovers help to have pigs. Sows that have few pigs and are poor milkers should be sold. Good pasture may save as much as half of the feed cost. Fat hogs should be sold when weighing 200 to 225 pounds, since it requires an extra-large amount of feed to make them weigh more.

Use of small-grain and other winter cover crops and feeding hay make it possible to carry sheep through the winter on little or no grain, it is stated. Records kept on flocks throughout the state show that Kentucky sheepmen normally feed less than 50 pounds of grain per ewe a year. Dairymen were advised to reduce the amount of grain by feeding grain only to fresh cows or to heavy-producing cows. Cow owners should grow alfalfa, lespedeza, clover and other hays in abundance. An acre of alfalfa hay per cow would save a large amount of grain. Good pasture produces as much feed per acre as 50 bushels of corn.

Farmers were advised to fill all silos and urged to make trench or temporary silos where they have none.

Grain, said the Experiment Station statement, is only a roughage supplement for cows. By feeding more hay, the use of grain can be reduced and milk production not seriously lowered.

To save chicken feed, it was suggested that farmers sell old hens and all roosters except those in hatching flocks. Keep only pullets for egg production, since old hens now are going out of production and will be back in before January or even later. In the meantime they will eat much grain. Pullets lay an average of three or four dozen eggs a year more than old hens, and at least two dozens more during the winter.

Even chickens should be fed hay, in addition to grain and oyster-shell. Put hay in racks where the hens can pick at it. Hay and pasture for hens will save grain.

Blood River

It has rained so much that hip boots were almost needed.

Kentucky Belle, you failed to show up again the last of the month as you said. Guess that you were water bound. Sure hope that you had a nice time. Hello—well with your natural false face. Ha! Ha! I sure enjoyed myself with my mask.

A storm shower was given in honor of Mrs. C. W. McClure of Murray, November 1, at the home of Mrs. McClure's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Vaughn of near Blood River church. Approximately 30 guests were present for the occasion. Many nice gifts were received. They enjoyed refreshments of salmon and cheese sandwiches, cake, coconuts and nuts.

Recently, friends and relatives gathered at the home of Jesse McClure for a birthday dinner including Pete Wisheart and Ed Lovins. Seventy were present for the occasion. A beautiful dinner brought by the women was spread on a long table out on the lawn under cedar trees. In 1919 a twin birthday celebration was held at the same old homestead of McClure and Lovins.

Kentucky Belle, I am very glad that you won the tag of being the champion correspondent. You often told Ole Maid that you thought your news was the best and I was told.

you that I knew it was next best to mine; however reading is my hobby, except novels.

News is bulky this week but will give only a sketch for now.

Recipe Of The Week

Here is a thrifty cookie recipe which will meet the sweet-tooth test of the family and at the same time it saves wheat flour by using half oatmeal. Chewy with raisins and nuts, the molasses provides iron, notes Miss Florence Imlay, specialist in foods at the UK College of Agriculture and Home Economics.

Oatmeal Cookies

1/2 cup fat
1 cup molasses
1 egg
1/4 cup milk
1 1/2 cups sifted flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon soda
1 1/2 cups oatmeal
1/2 cup nuts
1 cup seedless raisins
2 teaspoons cinnamon

Clean the fat, add the molasses and beaten eggs mixed with milk. Sift together the flour, salt and soda and add the first mixture, add the oatmeal, nuts and raisins. Mix well. Drop by spoonfuls on a greased baking pan. Bake in a moderately hot oven, 375 degrees, for 12 minutes or until done. Remove from the baking pan while hot. This recipe makes about 60 cookies.

ELIZABETH'S FOUND A PLACE—This aerial view shows the mansion and grounds of Windlesham Moor, Surrey, which reportedly has been selected as future home of Princess Elizabeth and Lt. Philip Mountbatten after their marriage on Nov. 20. The 50-acre estate, which has a miniature nine-hole golf course, is 25 miles from London.

INVITATION TO MOVE—Tong Yu-nung, proprietor of a Shanghai clothing shop stares at 41 empty coffins that occupy his center aisle. After a dispute over the rent, Tong's landlord decided on this unusual method to tell Tong to get out.

Menu: Scalloped potatoes with cubed smoked ham, baked squash, buttered bread, salad and oatmeal cookies.

The Citizens Food Committee Suggest:

A "PEACE PLATE" FOR TODAY

Save Wheat! Save Meat! Save the Peace!

THURSDAY PEACE PLATE

In line with the recommendation of the Citizens Food Committee to use variety meats instead of the more expensive cuts, today's Peace Plate offers a delicious way to use sweetbreads. Like all the recipes being planned by the home economists in the Committee's Consumer Service Section, this one is well tested and easy to make if directions are carefully followed.

Suggested to round out the meal are Vegetable Harlequin (mixed cooked vegetables) and bread-and-butter pickles, with warm Apple Pandowdy for dessert, or one of your apple favorites.

CREAMED SWEETBREADS ON CEREAL FLAKES

2 pairs of sweetbreads
4 tablespoons butter or fortified margarine
3 tablespoons flour
Dash of pepper
1 teaspoon salt
2 cups milk

Let sweetbreads stand in ice water 30 minutes. Drain, plunge into 2 quarts boiling water to which 2 tablespoons vinegar and 2 teaspoons of salt have been added. Simmer covered for 30 minutes. Lift out, and plunge again into ice water. Drain, separate sweetbreads, and carefully remove fat and thick connective tissues. Then remove fine membrane and dry. Split sweetbreads in halves lengthwise if they are very thick. Meanwhile make white sauce. Melt butter in saucepan over low heat; stir in flour, pepper, and salt, and blend. Add milk gradually, while stirring, and cook until smooth and thickened, stirring constantly.

Break into pieces the cooked sweetbreads, add to sauce; heat thoroughly and serve on crisp cereal flakes, or on toast to use up your leftover bread.

VARIATION: Equal quantities of diced cooked chicken and sweetbreads; or add a few mushrooms.

BREAKFAST MENU FOR EGGLESS THURSDAY

If you've been wondering how to start the family off with a good breakfast on Thursday, try this menu. It's packed with good eating and the energy everyone needs to keep going strong until lunch.

Orange juice, fried mush with syrup, pan-broiled sausages, coffee or milk.

FOOD CONSERVATION REMINDERS:

1 Storing unused bread, wrapped, in the refrigerator, will keep it fresh and prevent molding.

2 Buy evaporated milk for at least part of your cooking. You get the same food value at less cost.
